

Darb Finance

New generation cryptocurrency asset management

Currently, the blockchain world is all about geeks and tech-specialists, in other words, people who live off technology or have deep a understanding of it. Solutions introduced so far are being developed for a specialized, small group of people, who do not mind playing CLI or compiling sources. How can we expect mass adoption of the blockchain-based services, if what we currently have either require specialized knowledge or is only a screenshot of a landing page at the moment with no real product? That is why the cryptocurrency world suffers from lack of accessible interface. We are going to be that interface. You can compare us to the first Windows operating system - moving from the console world to a simple, yet clean, interface.
